Location.

Großbeerenstraße 56B, 10965 Berlin

In global city rankings, Berlin has been among the top ten for years. Complex cultural events, an engaging way of life, and a unique history have earned the metropolis its global renown. It motivates millions of visitors every year to come to Berlin to see for themselves. Over the past decade, about 400,000 of them were so captivated by the city that they decided to stay for good.

To be sure, a high level of liveability makes it easy to fall in love with Berlin. But the city has so much more to offer. As a science hub, Berlin offers skills and knowledge in just about any scientific field you can think of. Moreover, Germany's capital of start-up businesses has developed an economic dynamic that attracts companies from inside and outside the country. Its location in the European heartland recommends it as place of business every bit as much as its ability to provide high-skilled graduates and its proximity to the start-up scene with its innovative potential for prospering businesses of tomorrow.

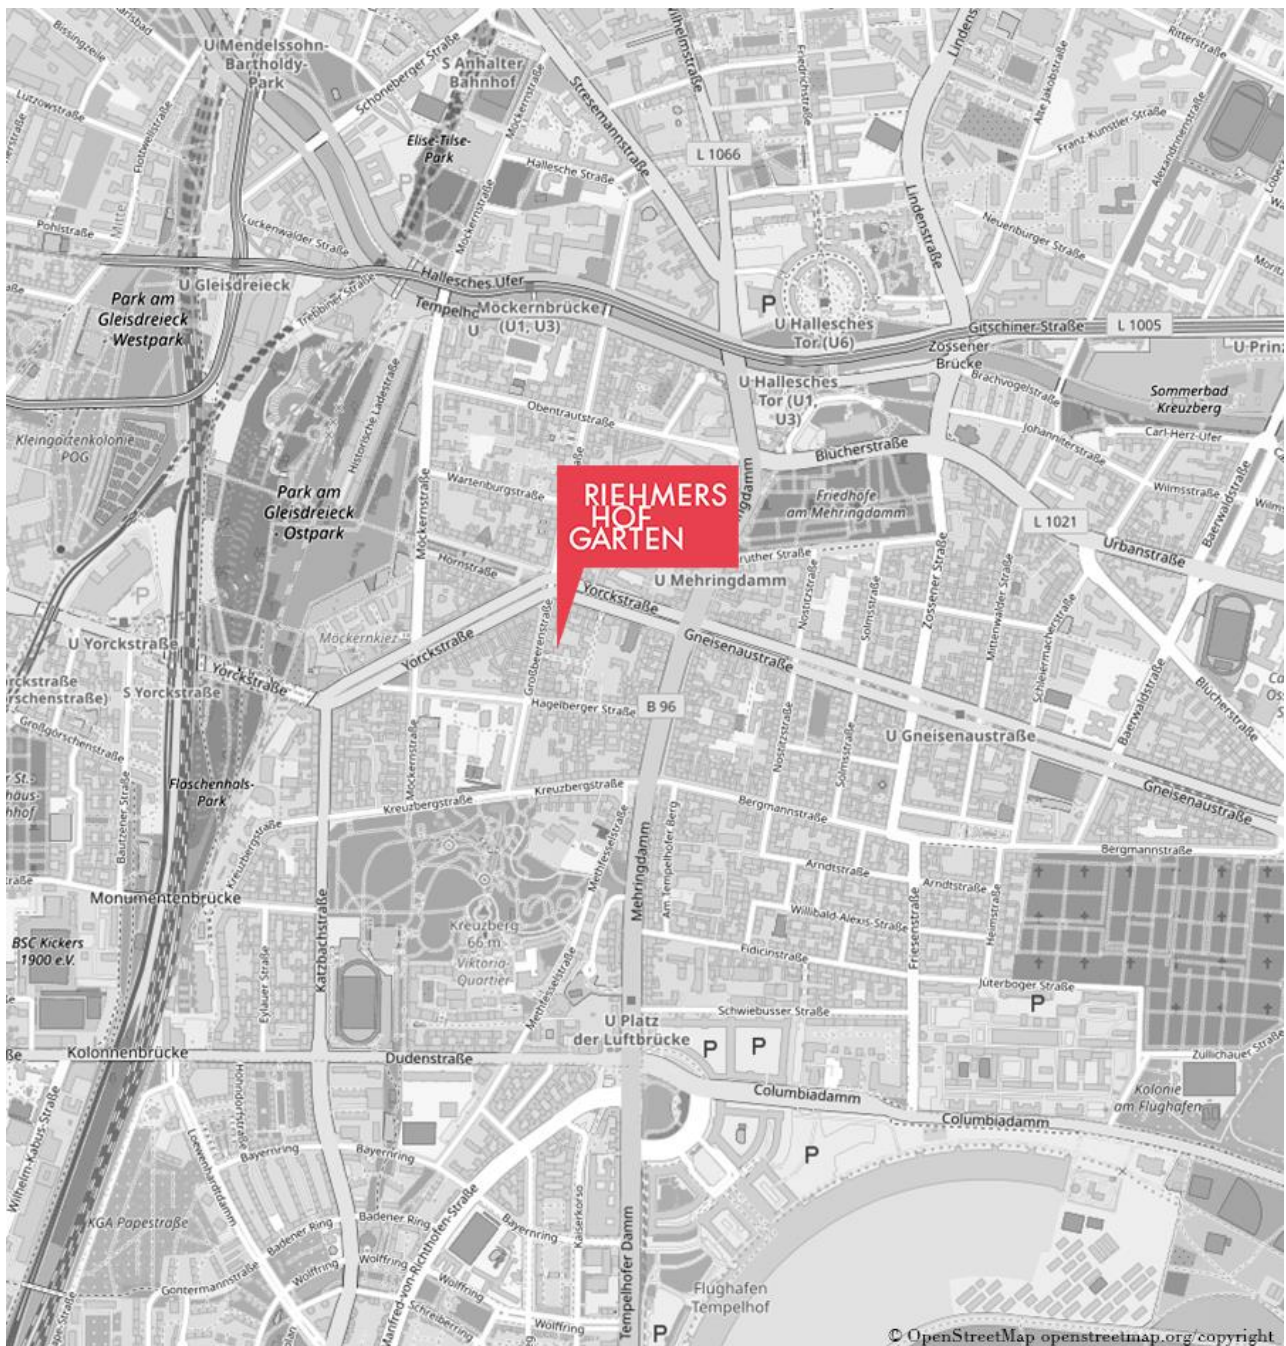

In Kreuzberg, the impulsive energy of young generations is keenly felt and reflected in up-and-coming trends. Aside from this district's centrality and legendary hipness, life here is defined by a highly productive cultural scene and by creative diversity. Especially the Bergmannstrasse has enormous appeal. Every store here is one of a kind—whether it sells wine, pastry or coffee, antique junk, designer artefacts or vintage goods by the pound, gourmet dog food, vegan takeaway food or famous sausages—while the space in between is dotted with cinemas, theatres and churches that occasionally double as concert halls. All of this embedded in a historic setting of streets that are testimony to the cultural heritage of the city. Viktoriapark, Gleisdreieck Park or the vast grasslands of the former Tempelhof airport grounds provide plenty of outdoor space for local recreation and leisure activities.

Property.

It is a gem dating back to Imperial Germany, and an asset to Berlin as architectural landmark: Riehmers Hofgarten. At the time, Wilhelm Riehmer let his courage and visionary zeal as builder inspire him to bypass the urban planning standards of his day in favour of upscale liveability. Rather than sticking with the dense development of tenements grouped around tiny courtyards, the master builder in 1891/1892 used a plot he owned to create a magnificent ensemble. With close attention to detail and the diligence of a heritage curator, large parts of the splendid vintage building were restored. It positively beams now with its regained historic glamour. The patrician façades present themselves with bright structures whereas the staircases inside are dominated by warm earthy colours. The entrance doors to houses and flats, the windows and stair railings were overhauled in line with their original historic design. Partially uncovered frescoes on the mezzanine levels illustrate the artful aesthetics of the era when the house was built. To meet sophisticated expectations, modern-day quality was seamlessly integrated. The lighting system as well as the bell and video intercom system complete the authentic design by adding upscale state-of-the-art technology. Water supply lines and waste water pipes were replaced, while heating and electrical installations were either upgraded or replaced.

The eleven entranceways are named after scions of the Hohenzollern dynasty. Hence the entranceway with the stairway up to this second-floor flat at Grossbeerenstrasse 56 B is called Berthold. Extending over 80 square metres. As a community, residents of this housing complex have the use of the attractive courtyard garden whose groomed trails, picnic lawns, boule court and playground offer various options for passing the time, hanging out and comparing notes. Other amenities include the roofed-over buggy and bicycle park, and access to the underground car park via the courtyard garden.

Facilities.

Großbeerenstraße 56B, 10965 Berlin

The 2-bedroom flat welcomes you with that generous sense of proportion that Berlin's stately front buildings are famous for. Refurbished in strict accordance with the specifications of the heritage conservation authority, the flat offers 80 square metres. The staircase inside the entranceway will take you up to this 2-bedroom flat on the second floor. A sensibly structured floor plan divides the 80 square metres among two generously proportioned bedrooms, a kitchen and a newly done bathroom. One room, measuring 26 square metres, lies to the right of the entryway, its two windows overlooking the courtyard garden. Next to it lies the other room, this one having 33 square metres. As a corner bedroom, it benefits from windows that face two different directions. Moreover, the open-plan arrangement with the integrated kitchen lets you start shared meals with the joy of fixing them together.

In consideration of heritage guidance, the walls and floors were treated with great care, while plaster and ceiling ornaments were painstakingly restored, completed or even recreated in the original style. The same is true for the historic parquet and the wooden floors. Wherever necessary, the herringbone parquet flooring was replaced with new oak elements copying the original. The elegant bathroom features a neatly shaped shower and matte black tiles on floor and walls. Only the decorative natural stone tiles above the wash basin disrupt the symmetry. Luxurious fittings and clever ceramics, dimmable downlights, wooden vanity substructures with illuminated drawers, and dimmable heated wall mirrors complement the design with purposeful finesse. From radiator to towel rack, each fit-out detail integrates smoothly into the overall aesthetic concept. To ensure optimal media connectivity, all internet, phone and TV cables have been replaced. A bolt crossbar lock secures the apartment entrance door. The unit comes with an underground motorbike parking spot.
